13 Visa for Thai Researchers Going to France

Convention d'accueil (an official document signed by the host institution) is a crucial document for researchers from non-European Union countries, as it is imperative for obtaining a “scientist” visa to allow the researchers to enter France. It also allows them to obtain a “scientist” residence permit once they are in France. The signed and stamped convention d'accueil is part of the visa application. Master's students travelling to France must apply for a “training” visa instead of a scientist visa mentioned above.
